Download Fluke Network Inspector 5.0

Lab 7.1.9b Introduction to Fluke Protocol Inspector

Objective

This lab is a tutorial demonstrating how to use the Fluke Networks Protocol Inspector to analyze network traffic and data frames. This lab will demonstrate key features of the tool that can be incorporated into various troubleshooting efforts in the remaining labs.

Background / Preparation

The output in this lab is representative only. Output will vary depending on the number of devices added, device MAC addresses, device hostnames, which LAN is joined, and so on.

This lab introducing Protocol Inspector will be useful in later troubleshooting labs as well as in the field. While the Protocol Inspector (PI) software is a valuable part of the Academy program, it is also representative of features available on other products in the market.

Note: The configuration files used for this lab are available from the instructor. They will be used for other labs, so please do not change any configuration settings. The configuration contains several components for testing purposes and is not intended to represent a good production configuration.

At least one of the hosts must have the Protocol Inspector software installed. If the lab is done in pairs, having the software installed on both machines means that each person can run the lab steps. However, each host may display slightly different results.

Step 1 Cable the lab as shown in the diagram

Note: This is exactly the same lab configuration as the Network Inspector lab.

Load the configuration files Lab3-SanJose1Config.txt and Lab3-SanJose2Config.txt into the appropriate routers. These files are available from the instructor.

Configure the workstations as follows, which is the same as the NI lab:

Host #1	Host #2
IP Address: 192.168.1.10	IP Address: 192.168.2.10
